PICK-UPS AND DROP-OFFS

We can arrange pick-up and drop-off for riders at any hotel or central meeting point in either Cusco City or The Sacred Valley. Your luggage will be loaded in the shuttle on pick-up and drop-off days. The final day of riding finishes in Cusco City.

GUIDES

Your group will have one experienced guide for every 3-4 riders. All guides are at least bilingual in English and Spanish. Guides carry first-aid certification to respond to trailside injuries. And they love to have a good time!

Your guides bring over 15 years of combined experience riding and guiding the Peruvian Andes. You're in good hands!

LODGING

Your lodge will be a beautiful bed & breakfast-style homes that have been selected with a rider's needs in mind. There are courtyards or patios where you can relax by a firepit. Accommodations include Wi-Fi, laundry facilities, kitchen and open areas.

GEAR & EQUIPMENT

Well-maintained 2017 YT CAPRAS (Size M or L) are included with the cost of your tour. Bikes come equipped with 170 mm Rockshox Lyrik front fork, Monarch Plus rear shocks, and dropper seatposts. Our bikes will handle any obstacle the trail has in store!

While we offer complete protective gear (helmets, knee pads, elbow pads, and gloves) to our clients; however, we recommend that riders bring their own gear to guarantee maximum comfort.

GRUB

Peruvian cuisine – a fusion of ingredients and spices from the country's coast, sierra, and jungle – has achieved international fame amongst foodies. It's hard not to love!

All breakfasts are served at your lodging before the designated departure time for each day of riding. For lunch, riders will sample Peru's most famous dishes and beverages, served trailside when possible. 1 dinner is included in the cost of the trip.

WHAT TO EXPECT

Peruvian trails are raw, minimally maintained and very vertical at times – it's the Andes after all! Trails, in very few cases, are bike-purposed: these trails were either originally Inca trails or community footpaths to connect the Andean highlands with nearby valleys. Cusco and The Sacred Valley's local trails are widely recognized as some of the best in the world, offering a blend of massive descents, technical riding, and living culture. Imagine traveling 100 years back in South American time – only on a mountain bike...Yea, it's like that.

Riders should consider themselves intermediate to advanced-level all-mountain riders with some downhill experience.

Given the high elevation of most rides, vegetation can be sparse, but what Cusco lacks in trees and roots it accounts for in rocks! See our The Ultimate Andean MTB Experience YouTube video for an idea of what you can expect.

ALTITUDE & CLIMATE

Riding will be done between 9,000 ft and 15,000 ft of elevation. Whereas many locals look to coca leaves as a traditional remedy for altitude sickness, riders might consider prescription medication also.

Temperatures range from 45°F to 80°F in towns and valleys, while temperatures can vary between 30°F to 60°F at higher elevations. Rain or hail showers are always a possibility.

SAFETY

Rider safety is paramount. Guides, drivers, and everyone else involved prioritize the safety of the group over anything else. While cellular reception is frequently unavailable along the remote trails that you'll be riding, guides will always carry two-way radios and a satellite communicator to keep the group together and to respond to any emergency.

Cusco and The Sacred Valley are destinations that are very safe for tourists. In fact, exploring Cusco's historic district and the small towns of The Sacred Valley during your free time is something that we highly recommend!

PAYMENT
